

Syntelos Politics

Tuesday, 17 July 2018

Treason

Treason against the United States, shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort.

U.S. Constitution Art. III, Sec. 2

The identification and characterization of substance and significance is work. History records our efforts to identify and characterize the term objectivity to represent the cognitive skill employed in the performance of this work. When Socrates considered the term object in substance and significance, he initiated the subject of study and development that produced the word objectivity. By the study of substance and significance we identify and characterize meaning and understanding, illuminating language across distances of breath, life and space. When we betray meaning by ignoring substance and significance, we subjugate ourselves to anything and anyone that may occupy attention by violence or distraction.

This is the situation of the moment. Some would discount the assessment of the activities of Donald John Trump as not treasonous. These are people who have not been paying attention.

The substance of these activities have included psychological and physical terror, deconstructing government to non-law (“dumb law”, “just do it”, authoritarian tyranny), and inverting the principles of establishment to subjugation. The significance of these activities is the office of the President of the United States. In that position, intent and color have well known significance.

These efforts have yielded scarce fruit because they have been opposed. This opposition affords their consideration, not their dismissal. Without the opposition which affords this consideration, the United States would be failing its principles of establishment and charter to a far more extensive degree than presently evident, and the consideration of treason on behalf of Donald John Trump would be met with incarceration or murder, or at the very least privation by harassment.